BACKGROUND:

The City of Farmers Branch has perennially provided public health services to its residents through an interlocal agreement with Dallas County. The Dallas County Health and Human Services Department provides limited low cost public health services for the following:

- Communicable Disease Control
- Laboratory Services
- Immunizations
- Child Health Care
- High Risk Infant Case Management

The County charges sliding-scale fees, which are based on ability to pay. A fee schedule is provided in Exhibit A of the contract. The clinics are open to all residents. The City pays the County on a monthly basis for these services. In 2018, Farmers Branch residents made 811 visits to Dallas County clinics for an average 67 visits per month.
